FLIGHT RELEASE OFFICER QUALIFICATION

Background

CAPR 60-1 defines the qualifications for becoming a Flight Release Officer in Paragraph 2-5. One of the requirements is successful completion of the National CAP FRO training program located in the Stan/Eval section of the Operations Training Web page. The regulation does not address refresher training.

Policy

Because of frequent changes within CAPR 60-1, and numerous National HQ supplemental revisions to the operating rules, the online FRO course is also periodically updated. It is the policy of California Wing that in order to remain current, each Flight Release Officer will review CAPR 60-1, including all associated directives, and complete the online National CAP FRO training when it is updated, or at least once every 24 months. Upon successful completion of the course, the member will print the completion certificate and insure that it is posted to the member's personnel file.
